maps Intercultural Mediations Ana María Manzanás Calvo, 2003 Intercultural Mediations proposes a study of the multiple crossings between and among the different literary traditions of the United States. The volume draws upon two main theoretical sources: namely postcolonial theory and American Border Studies and aims to articulate a model of the hybrid postcolonial and liminal nature of writing in the US. Ana M. Manzanás and Jess Benito explore the nature of the ethnic Others, appropriation, dialogization, and subversion of the Euroamerican authoritative discourse embodied in what the authors call the Book of the West, as well as the inscription of cultural difference on the white page. Ana M. Manzanás is Associate Professor of American Studies at the Universidad de Salamanca, Spain. Jess Benito is Associate Professor of American Studies and Literary Theory at the Universidad de Castilla-La Mancha, Spain. Manzanás and Benito have authored a book on Toni Morrison and James Baldwin (1994) and they have also edited and translated into Spanish Structures of Negation Chelvanayakam Kanaganayakam, 1993. Despite almost three decades of sustained literary activity and a body of work that includes eleven novels and five volumes of poetry, Zulfikar Ghose remains a relatively obscure writer. Partly responsible is the difficulty of placing Ghose in any one literary tradition as a result of his experimental approach to language and narrative. This much-needed analysis traces continuities in Ghose's work and illustrates the relation between his changing narrative forms and the experience of marginalization. Ghose, who now lives and works in the United States, spent his first seventeen years in India and his next seventeen in England. Chelva Kanaganayakam argues that his quest for new narrative modes is characteristic of the native-alien experience and the search for identity. In the first chapter, the formal changes in Ghose's books of verse are used to set up a paradigm for the study as a whole. Chapter two contextualizes the early fiction within two traditions: the Anglo-Indian and the Indo-Anglian. The subsequent chapters deal with the individual novels. Through interesting close readings, they chart the journey from mimesis through stream of consciousness, picaresque, metafiction, and magic realism. Kanaganayakam also discusses the role of experimentation in postcolonial as well as postmodern writing and addresses the problematic issue of creating a poetics for dealing with postcolonial and marginal experience. During the last few years, issues of nation, nationalism, identity, ideology, and canonicity have become urgent and controversial with respect to postcolonial texts. Kanaganayakam shows that Ghose's writing is very much a response to a complex perception of postcoloniality. This is the first book-length study of Ghose's work. BOOK JACKET Title Summary field provided by Blackwell North America, Inc.
