Distance Learning Evaluation Tool

Introduction

Recently, schools in the UAE, put in place different models of distance learning as their core education platform in response to the unexpected disruption of normal schooling. While circumstances vary, the efforts made by schools to implement a changed and largely unfamiliar method of education in a short space of time must be recognised.

The variation that exists between schools' provision must be acknowledged, specifically the experience of staff and students in using distance learning techniques or materials, the available resources in school or in homes, and the level of support which parents are able to provide. International best practice emphasises that special circumstance distance learning programmes cannot replicate what is done in school.

There is a need to evaluate all schools' distance learning programmes, the provision and impact on students' learning experiences. This evaluation tool is informed by a review of international best practices, an in-depth understanding of our schools, and feedback from parents, students and principals.

Leadership and governance continue to be accountable for key areas of education. These key areas include students' participation in their educational provision, students' ability to access their learning, their continuing momentum for learning with appropriate and regular feedback, and their highest possible levels of social and emotional wellbeing including regular communication between students, teachers and parents.

A tool for improvement

The purpose of the tool is to evaluate the school's distance learning provision and more importantly, to support the school in identifying areas that require improvement. It will also allow schools to prioritize and plan improvement in an efficient and more focused manner. Schools are encouraged to use the tool as a starting point for their improvement journey in order to move from a temporary alternative to normal schooling (Stage 1) to a more sustainable distance learning option. Schools may seek clarification on areas for development and final outcomes.
