Distant Early Warning:

Distant Early Warning Donald M. McVicar, 1992 Construction in Cold Regions Terry T. McFadden, F. Lawrence Bennett, 1992-04-16 Written as a reference on effective engineering practice for construction activities in Arctic and Sub Arctic regions It is based on many sources around the world including the Soviet Union and China where people live and work in very low temperatures Provides a broad look at overall problems found by engineers contractors and builders including case histories that illustrate actual projects throughout the cold regions of the world The Department of State Bulletin, 1954 Securing the Continental Skies Matthew Trudgen, 2025-03-04 During the early years of the Cold War Canada and the United States began to develop a peacetime defence relationship Initial co operation was limited to the construction of minor installations and the creation of joint plans But in 1950 both countries began to develop an air defence system to protect North America from the Soviet threat Securing the Continental Skies uses archival sources that have become available since the end of the Cold War to offer new insights into the development of the North American air defence system during the 1940s and 1950s Matthew Trudgen analyzes the negotiations behind several recommendations from the Permanent Joint Board on Defence three early warning radar lines and the North American Air Defence Command NORAD He argues that in Canada air defence policy was shaped by different conceptions of the national interest among the Cabinet the Department of External Affairs the Royal Canadian Air Force and the departments of Transport Defence Production and Northern Affairs and Natural Resources In the United States air defence policy reflected differing assessments of the importance of continental defence by the Truman and Eisenhower administrations Ultimately North America s air defences were the outcome of a variety of factors including Canadian political considerations and emerging nationalism the state of Canada s electronics industry the relationship between both countries air forces and American nuclear strategy Securing the Continental Skies challenges assumptions about Canadian foreign relations in the 1940s and 1950s and offers a new assessment of military co operation between Canada and the United States Reluctant Conquest Kathryn C. Lavelle, 2025-06-10 A comprehensive history of U S involvement in the Arctic from the American Revolution through the acquisition of Alaska to the present day What drives American foreign relations in the Arctic It is difficult to give a unified answer to this question because most histories of the region are divided between the Atlantic and Pacific coasts Asian and European strategic interests or federal government and Indigenous peoples concerns making it difficult to understand the connections among the environmental challenges scientific understandings strategic calculations and governance relationships Most Americans do not think of their country as an Arctic power yet it is a region where the United States has had important ties throughout its history In this sweeping study from the founding of the country through the acquisition of Alaska to the present Kathryn C Lavelle considers American relations across the circumpolar North incorporating discussions of economics national security and science that are conventionally separated Lavelle argues that it is impossible to understand U S policy without a knowledge of American political development and of how scientific understandings have grown alongside studies of climate and other environmental issues This history has important implications for future American policy regarding traditional national security and political economy in addition to climate change and environmental cooperation
