PROLOGUE

Although I often looked for work, I usually had to admit that there would be no more for me than that of at best the rest. The world had ended once already and would again at any moment. The war had come and changed us by happening when everyone said it couldn't. We saw stars here every day and there were stars here the world over—stars in the sky, stars in the earth, stars in the sea. There was that of ghosts and the walking wounded. Many came back to America on the ships, others, after through and carrying little pieces of what they'd seen behind their
