1. Agricultural Research Service

National Agricultural Library
10001 Baltimore Avenue
Beltsville, MD 20705-2351

Susan H. Fugate, Head, Special Collections

Special Collections of the National Agricultural Library (NAL) collects, preserves, and provides access to manuscripts, rare books, photographs, posters, and other unique materials. Collection strengths include the fields of agriculture, horticulture, entomology, poultry sciences, botany, natural history, and agricultural history. Unique collections of note are the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) History Collection, the USDA Pomological Watercolor Collection, the Screwworm Eradication Collection, the Alvin L. Young Collection on Agent Orange, the Smokey Bear Collection, and extensive holdings in nursery and seed trade catalogs. Other unique resources include journals of agricultural pioneers and plant explorers, personal papers of USDA scientists, and records of agricultural organizations.

NAL Special Collections provides reference and research services and a variety of photo reproduction services. We publish finding aids and other miscellaneous publications in print and electronic formats. The majority of holdings are available for on-site use by appointment. See our website for details of hours and services.

Special Collections produces exhibits, both on-site and traveling. Most exhibits are featured on our website as well. Online exhibits, collection descriptions, finding aids, and a gallery of electronic images from Special Collections materials are available on our website.

3a. Forest Service—Headquarters

The Forest Service, which administers the nation's 155 national forests and 20 national grasslands, has five divisions: the National Forest System, Research and Development, State and Private Forestry, International Programs, and Business Operations. The public is most familiar with the National Forest System, which physically manages the 193 million acres under the agency's care. The agency has four levels of National Forest System officers. The Chief oversees the national level, which is headquartered in Washington, DC, and is typically called the Washington Office. Regional Foresters oversee the nine geographic regions, numbered 1 through 10 (Region 7 was eliminated some years ago), each encompassing several national forests and grasslands. The Forest Supervisor is the head of a national forest, which is divided into ranger districts managed by District Rangers. The 600+ ranger districts vary in size (50,000 acres to more than 1 million acres) and staff (10 to 100 people).
