What are They Saying about Theological Reflection? Robert L. Kinast, 2000 Theological reflection is a form of theologizing that begins with lived experience correlates this with the sources of Christian faith and draws out concrete implications for praxis Robert Kinast finds five distinct types of theological reflection from within this common form ministerial spiritual wisdom feminist inculturation and practical theology Each of these styles is analyzed in terms of the type of experience it favors the way it connects this experience to theology and what sort of praxis it envisions The end result is a succinct overview of this wide ranging and diverse approach to theology BOOK JACKET Title Summary field provided by Blackwell North America Inc All Rights Reserved Method in Ministry James D. cognitivism a theory about the value of the arts According to this theory art isn't merely a source of delight amusement pleasure or emotional catharsis rather art can be a source of knowledge and understanding To test the theory the authors address a range of complex questions such as Is there an empirically demonstrable connection between art and understanding vis vis spiritual reality What distinctive cognitive value does engagement with art generate How does participation in artistic activities stimulate spiritual understanding and growth If art's primary function is to facilitate understanding then what is the role of beauty Is it an unrelated aim or is it essential to understanding What advantages if any does beautiful art have over non beautiful art with reference to understanding These and other questions are taken up here by a diverse research community that includes artists and art researchers philosophers and theologians and scholars in the psychological cognitive and social sciences Together they are developing empirical and experimental studies of the cognitive significance of art with respect to spiritual realities and the discovery of new spiritual information Their work will be of particular interest to scholars and practitioners in the fields of religion theology and art who value innovative interdisciplinary research and discovery
