thought entered my head I was unsure it just suddenly popped in there and refused to budge It was disturbing that I should have such an idea so easy but there it was I could kill Rachel and then there would be no reason why I couldn't do whatever I wanted I could act forever I could paint houses forever whatever the fuck I wanted to do With her out of the way there would be nothing to stop me except my own ambition I couldn't quite believe I was having these thoughts I know that everyone is prone to the occasional lapse in normal behaviour but it usually passes in a moment or two It also leads to intense remorse that the thought ever occurred Not in this case though The thought of digging a grave right here and now and luring Rachel here throwing her into the newly dug hole and covering it with earth She would scream for a while but there would be nobody to hear her I would keep filling the hole with earth and then the screaming would stop She would be gone forever I would report her missing and she would never be found I would be looked at with sympathy and my career would skyrocket because of it I would be the hero who came back from the brink to relaunch a successful acting career I would marry a supermodel but not before a string of torrid but highly sexually charged relationships had taken place I had a peculiar sensation of déjà vu as if this wasn't exactly a new thought or indeed a new experience for me I did My Big Red Fire Truck Stephen T. Confessions of a Lapsed Neo-Davidsonian Samuel Louis Bayer,1997 Contrasts the Davidsonian strategy of sentence semantics which treats verbs as sets of ordered sequences of participants then extends the sequences to embrace the swell event with the neo Davidsonian which considers verbs as sets of events and associates participants with these events through relations called thematic roles Attempts to choose between them by focusing specifically on how meanings are constructed at the level of sentences and phrases Finds deficiencies in both approaches and proposes an improved neo Davidsonian account Revised from a 1996 Ph D dissertation for Brown University Annotation copyrighted by Book News Inc Portland OR

Dream Dealer Greg Newbold,2026-03-03 From drug dealer to don an unforgettable story of redemption and reinvention from New Zealand's leading criminologist Growing up in 1950s Auckland Greg Newbold's early years were marked by order and chaos in equal measure as his stable childhood later became transformed by his mother's alcoholism After leaving school at 17 he entered university in 1970 and soon became immersed in the drug fuelled hedonism of the era Always a risk taker he began dealing in the drugs he was using until he was arrested in 1975 and charged with offering to sell 34 grams of heroin to a police informant. Convicted and sentenced to seven and a half years imprisonment, he spent the first half of his sentence in the maximum security prison at Paremoremo before being transferred to a prison camp. Dubbed Dream Dealer by a fellow inmate, it was at Paremoremo that Newbold began to take a serious look at his future. He knew that his best chance of rescuing his life lay in continuing his studies in prison. Already a graduate before his arrest, Newbold pursued an MA in anthropology, submitting a ground-breaking thesis on the social organisation of Paremoremo Prison that earned him first class honours and a scholarship. After his release, he completed a PhD, became a lecturer at Canterbury University, and rose to become one of New Zealand's leading criminologists. Gregrelives the rollercoaster ride of his life, describing the world of the prison in the 1970s and his eventful journey through it. He recounts the sometimes dramatic process of adjusting to freedom after release, as well as his pivotal role in the Committee of Inquiry into Oakley psychiatric hospital, which led to the institution's eventual closure. Fast-moving and unadorned, Dream Dealer is the story of a man who has lived on both sides of the law but who is defined by neither.
