The States of Child Care Sara Gable, 2014 This accessible up to date account of the chronic issues plaguing child care reform offers viable solutions drawn from a model state child care system in the state of North Carolina Original data illustrates the complex landscape of U S child care as well as the ambiguous relationship society has with the statistic that 64% of women with children under six are employed and in need of reliable high quality care of their young children

Building Community Systems for Young Children Daphna Bassok, Deborah Stipek, Moira Inkelas, Alice Kuo, 2005 This report examines the importance and funding sources of early child care and education ECE and the ways in which the State Early Childhood Comprehensive Systems SECCS Initiative improves early childhood outcomes Section I presents what is known about the importance of ECE quality and access Section II describes the current funding sources of ECE and presents examples of recent efforts to merge the often distinct child care sector and early education sector into a more integrated system Section III presents a broader vision of how early care and education providers can help promote positive parenting and link parents with needed services Increasingly there is attention to ways that early care and education arrangements can be enhanced to either provide or to serve as a link to the parenting supports and health care that families with young children may need Because child care providers are often the professionals with training in early childhood development who interact most frequently with parents of young children these providers can serve as one entry point into the broader early childhood service system Section IV concludes the report with recommendations for 1 improving access to quality ECE programs and 2 increasing capacity of ECE providers to play an expanded role for young children and families The following are appended 1 Head Start 2 Healthy Child Care America 3 Good Start Grow Smart and 4 Informational Resources Contains 77 footnotes This paper was adapted from D Stipek and T Ogawa Early Childhood Education in N Halfon E Shulman M Hochstein and M Shannon eds Building Community Systems for Young Children UCLA Center for Healthier Children Families and Communities 2000 ED467316

Readiness Elliot Regenstein,2026-01-07 An enlightening overview of how early childhood education and care works in the United States and practical steps for how the systems of delivery might be improved In Readiness Elliot Regenstein dives into how states oversee publicly funded early childhood services While early education and care have increasingly been treated as a public good families still struggle to find the services they need This book looks at the states seeking to develop coherent systems from a mix of care and education programs highlighting successes achieved to date and laying out the challenges ahead It is an insider s guide to who makes which decisions in state early childhood systems and how those decisions get made Regenstein looks at the capacity states have to manage their systems and how they have worked to reorient their capacity over time to better serve families with young children He looks at how states have supported community level leadership including how early childhood providers have sought to work with public schools The book highlights the information gaps that have plagued state and local leaders and some of the growing efforts to close those gaps It also examines the advocates and philanthropists whose work has a major influence on state policy Regenstein provides examples of how states have unified governance strengthened community capacity and upgraded data collection and delivery to respond to the needs of families and communities He recommends next steps for policymakers in state and local government advocates and philanthropists to bring about positive change to achieve aligned well funded early childhood care services

Building Blocks for Wisconsin's Future Wisconsin. Governor's State Advisory Council on Early Childhood Education and Care, Wisconsin Council on Children and Families, Wisconsin. Department of Children and Families, Wisconsin. Department of Public Instruction, 2010 A Quiet Crisis Council of Chief State School Officers, 2009 A quiet crisis is threatening the future of America Deeply rooted achievement gaps and shortfalls and a lack of high quality early learning opportunities compromise the potential of too many children America vows to be the country of hope and opportunity for all but it fails to fulfill this promise to our youngest citizens We celebrate their birth but then wait to see if they succeed in school before we pay attention to their strengths and needs Unlike many other countries we fail to make the most of the opportunities to foster children's lifelong motivation and engagement in learning through exploration discovery and discussion in the early learning years Research and practice confirm that we are at a point of crisis and opportunity New studies tell us that achievement disparities between disadvantaged children and their peers can be documented as early as nine months of age Research also tells us how to design high quality early childhood programs to enable all children to build a solid foundation for school success and lifelong learning For years we have known that kindergarten is too late to begin efforts to equalize education opportunity Now the evidence is indisputable we can save money reduce school failure and enhance children's lifelong success and productivity by improving learning opportunities for infants toddlers and preschoolers Chiefs know that building a 21st century learning system begins with a strong foundation of early childhood programs for all children Equally important is the need to provide earlier more sustained intensive enriched and carefully sequenced early learning experiences to children who are most at risk to overcome the odds that are stacked against them Chiefs are invigorated by the recent efforts to expand investment in the early years They embrace the opportunity to be part of the solution by adopting an agenda that focuses on 1 Building coherent integrated state early childhood systems instead of a collection of categorical programs 2 Defining policies and advocating for funding to provide the highest of quality in all early childhood classrooms and settings 3 Aligning the early childhood system with K-3 schooling and beyond and 4 Crafting a new state federal fiscal and policy partnership to advance high quality early childhood learning opportunities for all children with a concentration on those most at risk If we are to be serious about eliminating our domestic and international achievement gaps it is imperative that we expand our education reform agenda to enrich and uplift the learning potential of infants toddlers and preschoolers Failure to do so will compromise the lifetime potential of millions of children each year an injustice that we can no longer tolerate Addressing Social-Emotional Development and Infant Mental Health in Early Childhood Systems.
