Building In Berlin:

Building Berlin Bundesarchitektenkammer (Germany), Architektenkammer Berlin, 2012 Berlin currently enjoys international acclaim for its creative output especially in the field of architecture In fact over the last 20 years architecture in and from Berlin has emerged as a global brand What sets the German capital apart is a dynamic heterogeneous and innovative architecture scene that consistently attains the highest technical and design standards Themes and debates in Berlin reverberate around the world This volume showcases the latest and most interesting buildings in and from Berlin while also discussing current trends developments and the backgrounds to many important architectural projects

Building Berlin Louis Back, 2016 This volume presents outstanding contemporary projects of the latest and most interesting buildings in and out of Berlin by Berlin based architects on the basis of informative texts and facts as well as insightful photographic and planning documents From Berlin via China and Brazil to Spain Berlin s architecture is one of the most exciting aspects of its cultural heritage Many of its buildings are internationally renowned and year after year local architects design countless new projects in the capital and throughout Germany Whether new constructions or building redevelopments interior design landscape architecture or urban planning projects related to the German capital stand for sophisticated concepts and high quality As it does every year Building Berlin presents the most important and interesting projects from the past year in Berlin The presentation of the approximately 70 projects in eight chapters is accompanied by essays on exemplary aspects Especially noteworthy is the analysis on the protection of buildings from the postwar years The contribution XS Living looks at the different aspects of the current trend to live in the city on limited space and its consequences for residents developers designers and urban planners Further texts deal with contemporary event locations between economic requirements functional flexibility and the need to create always the desired atmosphere and the use of expressionist elements in modern architecture

Building the New Berlin Elizabeth A. Strom, 2001 Appraising the redevelopment of Berlin since the late nineteenth century Elizabeth A Strom details how the contests between politicians bureaucrats architects and developers have become especially prominent since reunification Whether addressing the historical struggle to shape the city into the important world capital that it is today charting the re creation of Berlin as a national government center or exploring the city s massive economic restructuring Building the New Berlin illustrates the intimate relationship between architecture and politics in an ongoing dialogue about whom the city should serve Strom suggests that Berlin is a unique case study of city building in the twentieth century due to Berlin s turbulent battles over the central city the seat of national and local governance Nonetheless these tensions provide fertile ground for the study of the central questions of urban political economy Strom has fashioned an accessible well written and perceptive study that not only is a valuable addition to urban development literature but also provides a foundational understanding of the debate and controversy in the planning of Berlin s city center in the 1990s

Ten Years of Building of Berlin ,1960 Berlin

Michael Imhof, León Krempel, 2004 This richly illustrated architecture guide introduces all new buildings that have been built since the opening of the Berlin Wall in 1989 Photographs of each building and square are completed with short background information about the location and its history The new Berlin architecture does not only feature the work of renown architects such as Sir Norman Foster Daniel Libeskind Helmut Jahn and Axel Schultes but also reflects the efforts to bring history and presence in harmony No other city has been as much the centre of modern architecture reflecting all developments of the last twenty years This book is much more than a simple guide it is the record of the most exciting city around the millennium

Architektur Berlin : Baukultur in und aus der Hauptstadt Architektenkammer Berlin, 2024 New architectural impulses recent buildings in the German capital by local architects as well as international projects by architects based in Berlin complemented by essays on topics that are currently being discussed in the world of architecture 60 projects demonstrate how the new paradigm of conversion is a real turning point rather than a short lived trend Examples include an apartment conversion that allows a family to remain in their home triple star cuisine in exceptional surroundings smart updates for old schools transformations repair measures and all manner of add ons as well as a roadmap for the climate transition of an entire city conceived in Berlin for places all around the world This volume is a call for a diverse multi layered socially orientated and therefore sustainable planning culture that involves and includes everyone Eight essays discuss various phenomena whether women live differently the story behind Berlin s pink piping how dinosaurs change a location what the architectural world is fighting for by the River Spree where Berliners sit down and how the city will affect even remote rural areas

Berlin and Its Builders Wolfgang Schäche, David Pessier, Daniel Ralf Schmitz, 2019 Viewing architecture and urban development from the perspective of building contractors is a much neglected topic to date in architectural and art history If mentioned at all they are often even seen as potential adversaries of the architects as their actions are allegedly determined solely by the maximisation of returns Artistic or social aspects of building therefore supposedly have no note worthy importance for them However it is the determined entrepreneurial and often very creative spirit of the contractors that allows the constructional realisation of architectural ideas for buildings In view of this this book is dedicated to the multi faceted actions of six selected building contractors who were active when Berlin flourished to become a world city The compact articles about their life and work also seek to illuminate their far reaching but largely unknown influence on the development of the cityscape and the architecture of Berlin

AUTHORS Prof Wolfgang Schache teaches at the Beuth Hochschule Berlin Daniel Schmitz Co is a Berlin based real estate development and investment firm with an unmatched commitment to exceptional architecture and true craftsmanship The focus of its activities is the design and development of distinctive high end residential property and exclusive homes 180 colour 54 b w images
