constitutionally vulnerable to unilateral provincial action and reliant on other levels of government for funding Could municipal power be reimagined without disrupting the existing constitutional structure or could the Constitution be reformed to designate cities a distinct tier of government Among other novel proposals this groundbreaking volume explores the idea of recognizing municipalities in provincial constitutions The first volume of a complementary pair authored by renowned Canadian legal and urban studies scholars Cities and the Constitution suggests contemporary solutions to one of our most pressing policy dilemmas Canadian Books in Print 2002 Marian Butler, 2002-02 Building Resilience to Climate Change Angela Andrade Pérez, Bernal Herrera Fernández, Roberto Cazzolla Gatti, 2010 With climate change now a certainty the question is how much change there will be and what can be done about it One of the answers is through adaptation Many of the lessons that are being learned in adaptation are from success stories from the field This publication contains eleven case studies covering different ecosystems and regions around the world Its aim is to summarize some current applications of the Ecosystem Based Adaptation concept and its tools used around the world and also draw lessons from experiences in conservation adaptation Government Finance Review, 2002 Managing Water Resources in a Time of Global Change Alberto Garrido, Ariel Dinar, 2009-01-13 Global change possesses serious challenges for water managers and scientists In mountain areas where water supplies for half of the world population originate climate and hydrologic models are still subject to considerable uncertainty And yet critical decisions have to be taken to ensure adequate and safe water supplies to billions of people millions of farmers and industries without further deteriorating rivers and water bodies While global warming is known to cause glaciers retreat and reduced snow packs around the world it is not clear that mountain discharge will be lower What is widely recognised is that water management must be adapted to accommodate significant regime changes However this inevitably involves managing transboundary rivers adding further complexity to putting principles in practice This book takes global warming and the importance of mountain areas in world water resources as the starting point First it provides detailed reviews of the processes going on in several rivers systems and world regions in Europe Rh ne and Ebro North America Canadian Rockies Western US and Mexico the Middle East Jordan Africa Tunisia Kenya and South Africa These contexts provide case studies and examples that show the difficulties and potential for adaptation to global change Land use economics numerous modeling approaches are some of the cross cutting issues covered in the chapters The volume also includes the views of water practitioners with two chapters authored by members of the US Canada International Joint Commission an industrialist from Western Canada and an environmental leader in Spain By combining a rich set of contexts and approaches the volume succeeds in offering a view of the global challenges faced by water agencies international donors and researchers around the world A case is made in some chapters to seek adaptive strategies rather than trying to reduce or control resources variability This requires factoring in land use social and economic aspects especially in developing countries Another conclusion is that complex problems can and must be posed and negotiated with the help of models mapping techniques and science based facts However complex these may be there are ways to translate them to easily interpretable and visualisations of alternative scenarios and courses of action This book provides numerous examples of the potential of such approaches to draft environmental programmes solve transboundary disputes and reduce the economic consequences of droughts and climate instability Economic Shocks Edward Iacobucci, Michael J. Trebilcock, Humā Haidar, C.D. Howe Institute, 2001 This study provides a comprehensive discussion of the various types of shocks that can affect the economy and considers the role of government in addressing the problems that arise from them The study first develops a taxonomy of shocks according to their source then outlines a variety of normative rationales that may justify some form of government intervention in response to a shock It describes the policy tools that are available to governments considering intervention and presents five case studies of shocks and governmental responses flood control relief the oil shocks of 1973 1979 intervention in cases of agricultural commodity price volatility the east coast cod fishery and trade liberalization transition costs Journal of Economic Literature ,2002 Canadian Books in Print 2002 Edited by Butler Marian, Marian Butler, 2002-02 Containing more than 48000 titles of which approximately 4000 have a 2001 imprint the author and title index is extensively cross referenced It offers a complete directory of Canadian publishers available listing the names and ISBN prefixes as well as the street e mail and web addresses Official Report of the Debates of the House of Commons Canada.
