Culture and Political Crisis in Vienna John W. Boyer,1995 In this sequel to Political Radicalism in Late Imperial Vienna John Boyer picks up the history of the Christian Social movement after founder Karl Lueger s rise to power in Vienna in 1897 and traces its evolution from a group of disparate ward politicians through its maturation into the largest single party in the Austrian parliament by 1907 to its major role in Imperial politics during the First World War Boyer argues that understanding the unprecedented success that this dissident bourgeois political group had in transforming the basic tenets of political life is crucial to understanding the history of the Central European state and the ways in which it was slowly undermined by popular electoral politics The movement s efforts to save the Austrian Empire by trying to create an economically integrated but ethnically pluralistic state are particularly enlightening today in the shadow of ethnic violence in Sarajevo where began the end of the Austrian Empire in 1914 The most comprehensive account of any mass political movement in late nineteenth century Central Europe this two volume work is crucial reading for anyone interested in Hapsburg history German history or the history of social democracy

Freedom and the Cage Leslie Topp, 2017-03-28 Spurred by ideals of individual liberty that took hold in the Western world in the late nineteenth century psychiatrists and public officials sought to reinvent asylums as large scale totally designed institutions that offered a level of freedom and normality impossible in the outside world This volume explores the caged freedom that this new psychiatric ethos represented by analyzing seven such buildings established in the Austro Hungarian monarchy between the late 1890s and World War I In the last two decades of the Habsburg Empire architects of asylums began to abandon traditional corridor based plans in favor of looser formations of connected villas echoing through design the urban and freedom oriented impulse of the progressive architecture of the time Leslie Topp considers the paradoxical position of designs that promoted an illusion of freedom even as they exercised careful social and spatial control over patients In addition to discussing the physical and social aspects of these institutions Topp shows how the commissioned buildings were symptomatic of larger cultural changes and of the modern asylum s straining against its ideological anchorage in a premodern past of unenlightened restraint on human liberty Working at the intersection of the history of architecture and the history of psychiatry Freedom and the Cage broadens our understanding of the complexity and fluidity of modern architecture s engagement with the state with social and medical projects and with mental health psychiatry and psychology

The Idea of National Superiority in Central Europe, 1880-1918 Marius Turda, 2004 This book focuses on the ways in which biological discourses of race and ethnicity affected and shaped nationalism and the idea of national superiority in Central Europe between 1880 and 1918 Preface In this book Marius Turda shifts a familiar and topical debate on to unfamiliar and neglected ground Since the shattering events of the 1930s and 1940s much has been written about the genesis of notions of race in Central Europe. The blending of organic and collectivist traditions in German thought with the evolutionary arguments which derived especially from Darwin and with biological ideas about heredity was catalysed from the 1860s onward by increasingly intense nationalist sentiments. None of this led directly to Nazism but it did create a climate in which such racist conceptions might be able to thrive. Their relation to forms of ethnic self assertion was direct and immediate. Here is Turda's starting point. Austria-Hungary in its last decades became notorious for nationality conflicts but hitherto it has been generally held that racial theories played a comparatively minor role there. Austria as a pressure group. Their rabid anti-Semitism shaded into a more broadly shared dislike of the salient role of the Jews in the country's public life. Turda expands on the theoretical and quasi-scientific context for this demonstrating in particular the influence of Houston Stewart Chamberlain who lived for some time in Vienna and of Ludwig Gumplowicz the cult sociologist of his day. But Turda's real novelty is to extend to the other half of the Dual Monarchy his analysis of the growing role of race. Hungary had some essential preconditions for it to infect national ideology. There was acute competition between ethnic groups mainly a series of bilateral contests between the dominant Magyar interest with its relative majority of the population and the half-dozen other significant nationalities. Moreover there was still an inherited discourse of an essentially tribal kind the Magyars as a pristine blood brotherhood as conquerors and warriors or to their opponents as Asian immigrants and uncultivated barbarians. Nineteenth century from vindication of the nobles and their political and social privileges to cover a whole ethnic community bound by fierce adherence to Hungarian integral statehood and to Magyar linguistic culture. Yet the racial element has usually appeared to be balanced for historians by another long established feature of Magyar hegemony its attractiveness to many born outside the Magyar camp and the concomitant willingness of the latter to accept on equal terms those who assimilated to its values. Over the centuries that had been a historical reality as well as equally importantly a perception of Magyar hospitableness magnanimity and adaptability. With most of the commentators whom Turda examines it remains a clear principle. This is hardly surprising whereas only one of them Zsolt Beothy was the scion of an ancestral noble or gentry family fully half came themselves from a non-Magyar background. Anti-Semitism in particular was largely absent from the Hungarian debate of his innovative account of racial thinking among influential representatives of the ruling culture of Dualist Hungary. He sets it in relief with his concluding portrait of a Romanian Aurel Popovici whose ideas about race likewise drew on a traditional national agenda in this case defensive attitudes specifically resistant to Hungarian assimilatory pressures and stressing purity of descent as distinctive of Romanians ethnic identity. Popovici's work was a milestone in the heightened sensitivity to issues of national degeneracy which set in after the turn of the twentieth century and as such anticipated one of the principal obsessions of later fascist ideology. In 1908 a wandering Scotsman Scotus Viator nom de plume of the young historian Robert William Seton Watson published a devastating critique of the politics of integration being pursued by Magyars. He called it

Racial Problems in Hungary Thus the most significant work of the leading foreign contributor to the debate on the nationality issue in the Habsburg Monarchy carried the keyword of Turda s investigation in its very title been called peoples and in our day are often known as ethnic groups there is no imputation for this British liberal of blood descent common physical characteristics or claims to inborn superiority Yet the terminology itself could easily become loaded with fresh meanings That would take place dramatically a decade later when the whole Habsburg edifice collapsed and a resultant new structure which Seton Watson had a share in creating unleashed yet more embittered nationalist clashes on the region Marius Turda has been uniquely placed to bring this project to fruition Bringing good knowledge of all the relevant languages including German and Hungarian as well as his native Romanian he has studied and researched in a number of different environments and acquired a notable scholarly detachment for dealing with these highly controversial issues and opens up broad and rich new perspectives on the political thought and intellectual culture of a part of Europe which contributed greatly to the instability of the whole continent in the early twentieth century R J W Evans Regius Professor of History Oxford Universi
