Risk in Financial Reporting C. E. V. Borio, Kostas Tsatsaronis, 2006 Advances in risk measurement technology have reshaped financial markets and the functioning of the financial system More recently they have been reshaping the prudential framework Looking forward they have the potential to reshape financial reporting too Recent initiatives to improve financial reporting standards have brought to the fore significant differences in perspective between accounting standard setters and prudential authorities Building on previous work we argue that risk measurement and management technology can be instrumental in bridging this gap and by the same token in improving financial reporting Risk measurement plays a crucial role in the measurement verification and validation of valuations It is the basis for giving more prominence to risk and measurement error information in public disclosures And it could act as more of a focal point in the design of accounting standards as greater consistency between sound risk management practices and accounting standards can help to narrow the wedge between accounting and underlying economic valuations

Handbook of Financial Markets: Dynamics and Evolution Thorsten Hens, Klaus Reiner Schenk-Hoppe, 2009-06-12 The models of portfolio selection and asset price dynamics in this volume seek to explain the market dynamics of asset prices Presenting a range of analytical empirical and numerical techniques as well as several different modeling approaches the authors depict the state of debate on the market selection hypothesis By explicitly assuming the heterogeneity of investors they present models that are descriptive and normative as well making the volume useful for both finance theorists and financial practitioners Explains the market dynamics of asset prices offering insights about asset management approaches Assumes a heterogeneity of investors that yields descriptive and normative models of portfolio selections and asset pricing dynamics
