Cultivating Development:

Cultivating Development David Mosse, 2004-11-20 What if development agencies and researchers are not driven by policy? Suppose that the things that make for good policy—policy that legitimises and mobilises political support in reality—make it impossible to implement. By focusing in detail on the unfolding activities of a development project in western India over more than ten years as it falls under different policy regimes, this book takes a close look at the relationship between policy and practice in development. David Mosse shows how the actions of development workers are shaped by the exigencies of organisations and the need to maintain relationships rather than by policy, but also that development actors work hardest of all to maintain coherent representations of their actions as instances of authorised policy. Raising unfamiliar questions, Mosse provides a rare self-critical reflection on practice while refusing to endorse current post-modern dismissal of development.

Cultivating Development David Mosse, 2005 Critiques the very essence of development policy, especially the complex relationship between policy and practice and role of participation. Armenia and Europe Pål Wilter Skedsmo, 2019-11-14 Armenia receives one of the highest levels of international aid per capita in the Western world and among the highest of the post-Soviet states. This ethnographic study based on new primary research looks at aid in the South Caucasus and its role in Armenia's relationship with Europe. In particular, Skedsmo argues that the Aarhus Convention, which entitles citizens of Europe to access information and participation in decision-making in environmental matters, has allowed Armenian citizens to adapt and control the direction of their country's political future in various ways, whether through protest activism or legal challenges. A new examination of aid and development and the structures these create, Europe and Armenia will be an essential case study for scholars of development, for regional specialists in the post-Soviet area, especially South Caucasus social anthropologists, students of post-socialism and development, postcolonialism. In addition, the book will be of interest for practitioners and European policy-makers, transnational organizations and others involved in development policies and projects in the region. The Anti-Politics Machine Julie Jenkins, 2017-07-05 James Ferguson's 1990 study The Anti-Politics Machine was a radical intervention in development studies that remains influential in the field today. It is also an excellent example of the way in which creative thinking can help shake up an idea and show problems in a new light. Ferguson's interest was development strategies in the Third World, the interventions by which aid agencies, NGOs and individual countries try to raise poor areas or countries' economic and living standards. Embedded in the community in Lesotho, a small country in southern Africa, Ferguson noted that time and time again the same strategies were used by agencies and foreign powers despite the fact that they had failed many times before. Seeking to analyse the implications of this discovery, Ferguson made a move that is often employed by creative thinkers: he stepped outside of the standard interpretative framework and applied a novel way of interpreting the problem. In this case, Ferguson imported his framework and methodology from the French philosopher and historian Michel Foucault, whose theories of power dynamics enabled Ferguson to see the failed development strategies from an entirely new perspective It is a simple but impactful move that helped revolutionise the discussion Page 5

Foreign Aid in the Middle East Beáta Paragi,2019-02-28 What do we mean by gifts in International Relations Can foreign aid be conceptualized as a gift Most foreign aid transactions are unilateral and financially unreciprocated yet donors expect to benefit from them Previous research dealing with foreign aid has analyzed the main donor motives and interests in providing financial support This book offers an in depth analysis of the invisible political or social exchange taking place between recipient countries and donors when a grant agreement is signed Focusing on Egypt Jordan Palestine and Israel the main beneficiaries of Western foreign aid the book uses gift theories and theories of social exchange to show how international social bonds are shaped by foreign aid and in what ways recipient countries are obliged to return the gift they receive Foreign aid is a means of buying stability or democracy in the region but Beata Paragi is interested here to understand the actual feasibility of Western assistance Looking at the context of the Arab Spring the book examines how aid impacts on a recipient country s domestic political events such as war the quest for self determination the struggle against occupation and the fight for dignity An original contribution to Middle East Studies and International Relations the research presents an alternative interpretation of foreign aid and show how external funds interact with local developments and realities
