reminder of the abuse he'd suffered at the hands of his former queen melted away her anger. When her guard was down she had to admit that big scarred captain was attractive. Guarding her heart from him was going to be a nearly impossible task. Meric Draconian queens were deceitful, vicious, and thought nothing of digging their claws into a warrior when least expected. Having been a breeder for ten long solars, Meric knew their ways well. Draconian females were hosts for parasites that fed on the pain of others. They'd lull a male into a false sense of security before unleashing horrible physical and emotional abuse. Humans were unlike the queens he'd known. They seemed open, outgoing, and almost innocent compared to Draconian queens. There was no arguing that they were clever and intelligent beings, but Meric harbored reservations about their true motivations. He'd guard himself until he was sure they weren't simply more skilled at deception. Especially the lovely healer who had insisted upon joining his crew. Meric knew that he spent far too much time thinking of the fair human female. It took all his discipline as a warrior not to follow her with his eyes and come running when she needed assistance. He refused to allow himself to become enamored with another cruel female, albeit it one wrapped in a beautiful package.

Her father's will dictates Violet Harper must wed or be disinherited, yet she'd rather face the wilderness of the wintry Yorkshire moors than be bound to cynical, damaged soldier Captain Lance Amberton. Fletcher has crafted a romance to engage medievalists.
