A Critical Discourse Analysis Of Family:

A Critical Discourse Analysis of Family Literacy Practices Rebecca Rogers,2003-06-20 Ethnographic case study of a low income low literate family negotiating language and literacy explores discourse forces that impact their lives issues of power and identity current debates about connections between literacy and society A Critical Discourse Analysis of Family Literacy Practices Rebecca L. Rogers,2007 A Critical Discourse Analysis of Family Literacy Practices Rebecca Rogers,2003-06-20 In this groundbreaking cross disciplinary book Rebecca Rogers explores the complexity of family literacy practices through an in depth case study of one family the attendant issues of power and identity and contemporary social debates about the connections between literacy and society The study focuses on June Treader and her daughter Vicky urban African Americans labeled as low income and low literate Using participant observation ethnographic interviewing photography document collection and discourse analysis Rogers describes and explains the complexities of identity power and discursive practices that June and Vicky engage with in their daily life as they proficiently critically and strategically negotiate language and literacy in their home and community She explores why despite their proficiencies neither June or Vicky sees themselves as literate and how this and other contradictions prevent them from transforming their literate capital into social profit This study contributes in multiple ways to extending both theoretically and empirically existing research on literacy identity and power Critical discourse analysis The analytic technique of critical discourse analysis is brought into the area of family literacy The detailed explanation interpretation and demonstration of critical discourse analysis will be extremely helpful for novices learning to use this technique This is a timely book for there are few ethnographic studies exploring the usefulness and limits of critical discourse analysis Combines critical discourse analysis and ethnography This new synthesis which is thoroughly illustrated offers an explanatory framework for the stronghold of institutional discursive power Using critical discourse analysis as a methodological tool in order to build critical language awareness in classrooms and schools educators working toward a critical social democracy may be better armed to recognize sources of inequity Researcher reflexivity Unlike most critical discourse analyses throughout the book the researcher and analyst is clearly visible and complicated into the role of power and language This practice allows clearer analysis of the ethical moral and theoretical implications in conducting ethnographic research concerned with issues of power A critical perspective on family literacy Many discussions of family literacy do not acknowledge the raced classed and gendered nature of interacting with texts that constitutes a family s literacy practices This book makes clear how the power relationships that are acquired as children and adults interact with literacy in the many domains of a family s literacy lives A Critical Discourse Analysis of Family Literacy Practices Power In and Out of Print will interest researchers and practitioners in the fields of qualitative methodology discourse analysis critical discourse studies literacy education and adult literacy and is highly relevant as a text for courses in these areas Construing Family Cathleen Bernadette Farrelly,2012 Home Economics as a field has always had the wellbeing of individuals and families as its key focus Its earliest manifestation as a range of domestic science subjects including cooking sewing and child rearing imbued with domestic ideology and technical scientific know how was aimed at improving the effectiveness of women s work within the home and family A concern for the plight of the family in a context where corporate industrial interests were perceived as having a negative impact on the family underpinned the rise of the Home Economics movement in the early 1900s Education was increasingly perceived as a means to national development and it was assumed that girls educated in domestic science would be better mothers and thus better producers of the future workforce Family was clearly understood to be the nuclear family consisting of a breadwinner husband and father with a dependent wife mother and children Today multiple understandings of family exist and various discourses of family can marginalise particular cultural perspectives while at the same time promoting and normalising others Surprisingly the ways family has been and is conceptualised in Home Economics has remained largely unexamined Similarly there is an absence of scholarly work on the way family has been portrayed in Home Economics school curriculum over time This is a significant problem for the field given the centrality of family to its purpose In this thesis I draw on Norman Fairclough s 1992 approach to critical discourse analysis to explore the conceptualisation of family within the Victorian state Australia senior school Home Economics curriculum from 1972 to 2009 Critical discourse analysis is based on the understanding that language has constructive effects on social identities relationships and systems of knowledge and beliefs Thus language in texts can shape knowledge and beliefs about family and the identities and relationships of family members The published syllabi related teacher handbooks and examinations form the corpora of this study Using the discursive context of this period as a sensitising lens I explore the textual devices and discourse practices drawn upon by Home Economics curriculum writers to construe family This approach also allows me to draw from a broad range of literatures about family to engage with the ways family is construed within the Home Economics texts My analysis reveals that the Home Economics course texts frame family within structural functionalist gender scientific management and crisis discourses I argue that the conceptualisations of family within these texts lag the discursive contexts in which they were written While key Home Economics position statements today claim an emancipative and socially critical role in improving family wellbeing my analysis reveals a disconnect between this intention and the senior school Home Economics curriculum The fruitfulness of Fairclough s approach to critical discourse analysis for the development of a text based curriculum history is revealed through this study

Manning-Smith,2014 With a theoretical framework of critical theory and a conceptual framework of Invitational Rhetoric a qualitative Critical Discourse Analysis CDA design was developed to study the discourse in written and spoken school home communication at RHS The researcher examined how discourse framed the social interaction of families with the school The intent of this CDA was not to generalize but rather to describe one phenomenon carefully and to understand the multiple and diverse elements of the school home communication at RHS and its influence on school family partnerships Alberta Journal of Educational Research ,2007 White, Working Class Males and Identity Performance in the Critical, Multicultural High School English Classroom Daryl Leslie Parks,2005 The Family ,1923 Applied Linguistics ,2005 Religious Language and Critical Discourse Analysis Noel Heather,2000 This book demonstrates the highly productive effects of applying contemporary views of discourse to religious language seen in theological terms from a postliberal viewpoint The emphasis is on critical discourse analysis CDA with its well developed methodology for deconstructing the manifestations of power What emerges is a combination of two complementary surprisingly simple models which explain many aspects of the language used and witnessed by contemporary Christian believers A wide variety of detailed worked examples provide a very practical introduction to the revealing practice of understanding how discourse analysis responds to the question When language is used in a religious context what s going on here 'Because We Want Your Family to Keep Flourishing' Teila Reynolds,2015 In the 2012 Families First Agenda the Government of British Columbia outlined the provision of evidence based parenting information as part of its official commitment to support vulnerable families This thesis investigates and analyzes the particular views and assumptions about parenting responsibility and child development in a selection of web based parenting resources endorsed by the BC government Study findings show that parenting education materials promote a universalized account of childrearing that privileges expert driven knowledge largely drawn from Euro Western frameworks The examined materials are also found to present a view of parents as responsible for monitoring and mitigating personal and environmental stressors Discussion of these features considers the ways in which parenting education materials marginalize the knowledge and practices of diverse families and conceal oppressive structures that perpetuate social and economic inequalities Implications drawn from the findings contribute to a discussion of more inclusive and collaborative approaches to parenting support and education On Critically Conscious Research Arlette Ingram Willis,2008-09-05 This provocative new title in the NCRL Collection is a call to action for new and experienced scholars to examine their bias and adopt a more critically conscious stance in their work Balancing an historical grounding with contemporary research this book focuses on how critical theories are manifested in language and literacy research The authors discuss critical consciousnesses in various places at various times in the world and at varying levels in language and literacy research They examine some overlooked roots and routes to present day
