Delaware, 1700-1900 Bernard L. Herman, 1989-10 A pioneering account of mid Atlantic folk architecture and of the nineteenth century transformation of traditional agriculture A major study of American vernacular architecture Dell Upton University of California Berkeley Bernard L Herman has provided us with a model study in the interdisciplinary interpretation of a common landscape Robert Blair St George Journal of American Folklore An impressive study that adds an important dimension to our understanding of the built environment Clifford E Clark Jr American Historical Review A wide range of reader expectations will be met by this book Herman provides a focused community study as well as an interpretation of vernacular architecture in the Mid Atlantic region John Michael Vlach Journal of the Society of Architectural Historians Scholars will be impressed by Herman's ability to marshal different kinds of evidence to buttress his contention that architecture reveals not just how people materially ordered their lives but helped to create and maintain order to project images of self and community and to control meaning in social discourse Choice The Author Bernard L Herman teaches at the University of Delaware where is a professor of art history and senior research fellow at the Center for Historic Architecture and Design Among his many publications are Everyday Architecture of the Mid Atlantic Looking at Buildings and Landscapes co author with Gabrielle M Lanier and Historical Architectural and the Study of American Culture co editor with Lu Ann De Cunzio The Delaware Valley in the Early Republic Gabrielle M. Lanier, 2005-01-18 Gabrielle M Lanier challenges prevailing characterizations of the region as culturally monolithic and reassesses its role in the formation of a distinctly American identity through the history geography and architecture of three of the valley s diverse cultural landscapes Through narratives of individual lives aggregate data from tax rolls and censuses archival research and close analysis of the built vernacular environment Lanier examines the unique ethnic class and religious constitution of each subregion as well as its racial diversity political orientation economic organization and cultural imprint on the landscape

Jacket Architecture and Town Planning in Colonial North America James D. Kornwolf, Georgiana Wallis Kornwolf, 2002 Incorporating more than 3 000 illustrations Kornwolf s work conveys the full range of the colonial encounter with the continent s geography from the high forms of architecture through formal landscape design and town planning From these pages emerge the fine arts of environmental design an understanding of the political and economic events that helped to determine settlement in North America an appreciation of the various architectural and landscape forms that the settlers created and an awareness of the diversity of the continent s geography and its peoples Considering the humblest buildings along with the mansions of the wealthy and powerful public buildings forts and churches Kornwolf captures the true dynamism and diversity of colonial communities their rivalries and frictions their outlooks and attitudes as they extended their hold on the land
