Conceptions Of Space In Social Thought:

Conceptions of Space in Social Thought Robert David Sack, 1980      'Conceptions of Space in Social Thought' Andrew Sayer, 1981      Geography Matters! Doreen Massey, John Allen, 1984-11-22 Space and nature have long been the concerns of human geography bound up with a strong sense of the importance of place Understanding how society changes entails understanding the geography of social change In this new reader the editors argue for a new way of looking at the relationship between society and its spatial organization between society and nature and between the interdependence and unique character of places First through a selection of material ranging from the changing geography of class cultures gender relations city structures state power to the processes of international law the readings demonstrate that neither space nor society can be understood independently of the other Social change involves spatial change and spatial change affects social organization The two sides of the relation mediate a geography of change Second a number of the articles explore the relation between society and nature and demonstrate that that too involves a continuous and changing interrelationship Nature cannot be understood outside of its social interpretation and use equally nature the environment has an impact upon the quality and future of our lives Third this collection presents an approach to the geography of place which has methodological implications for all those in social science who are concerned with the central problem of appreciating the of outcomes without losing sight of general processes of change To grasp the dynamic relation between society space and nature is important not only for human geography but for all the social sciences Geography Matters brings together a wide range of articles from both geographers and non geographers It addresses a series of economic political and cultural issues from a geographical angle that will put the social distinctiveness of place back on the agenda for all the social sciences

Geography - History and Concepts Arild Holt-Jensen, 1999-05-17 Totally revised and updated the Third Edition of this bestselling textbook is the definitive introduction to the history philosophy and methodology of human geography The book is organized into five sections an historical overview of the discipline and an explanation of its organization an examination of geography from Antiquity to the early modern period an analysis of paradigm shifts and the quantitative revolution discussions of postivism empiricism structuration theory realism and postmodernism and finally an introduction to core themes and concepts in current geographical thought including space place and feminism      Perspectives in Sociology E. C. Cuff, Wes W. Sharrock, D. W. Francis, 1998 This fourth edition has been wholly rewritten and restructured While retaining its wealth of information about the founding figures of sociology it also includes much new material on contemporary social theory and particularly the challenge to sociology posed by the rise of post structuralism with its questioning of the whole enlightenment project New features include a concise introduction to the major debates of the twentieth century information on thinkers of the nineteenth and early twentieth century whose relevance to modern social thought is only now being recognised e g Nietzsche Saussure Simmel key debates placed in historical and philosophical context connections drawn between post structuralist thinkers like Foucault and Derrida and the founding figures of sociology Marx Weber and Durkheim easy to read format four wholly new chapters tracing developments in social theory from structuralism to postmodernism

The Comparative Rôle of the Group Concept in Ward's "Dynamic Sociology" and Contemporary American Sociology Walter Blaine Bodenhafer,1921 Contributions to Alternative Concepts of Knowledge Michael Kuhn,Hebe Vessuri,2016-11-15 In the past the European social sciences labelled and discredited knowledge that did not conform to their own definition of scientific knowledge as an alternative kind of knowledge as indigenous knowledge Perception has changed with time not only has indigenous knowledge become an entrance ticket to the world of European social science but the indigenization of European theories is seen by some as the contribution of peripheral social sciences to join the theories of the centers This book offers contributions to the conversation on alternative concepts of knowledge inviting the reader to decide if they are truly alternative indigenous or European types of knowledge

Discourses of Place/deterritorialization Eeva Aarrevaara,2000

The American Journal of Sociology Albion W. Small,Ellsworth Faris,Ernest Watson Burgess,1921 Established in 1895 as the first U S scholarly journal in its field AJS remains a leading voice for analysis and research in the social sciences presenting work on the theory methods practice and history of sociology AJS also seeks the application of perspectives from other social sciences and publishes papers by psychologists anthropologists statisticians economists educators historians and political scientists

The Intelligible Metropolis Nora Pleßeke,2014-08-15 Writings on the metropolis generally foreground illimitability stressing thereby that the urban ultimately remains both illegible and unintelligible Instead the purpose of this interdisciplinary study is to demonstrate that mentality as a tool offers orientation in the urban realm Nora Ple ke develops a model of urban mentality to be employed for cities worldwide Against the background of the Spatial Turn she identifies dominant urban specific structures of London mentality in contemporary London novels such as Monica Ali s Brick Lane J G Ballard s Millennium People Nick Hornby s A Long Way Down and Ian McEwan s Saturday

The Betweenness of Place J. Nicholas Entrikin,1991-02 What makes New York City different from Moscow Are small towns looking more and more alike What criteria should we use to distinguish one place from another Today geographers and other social scientists are debating not only the answers to these sorts of questions but even whether or not to ask them at all This ongoing controversy about how or whether to study place and its meaning in modern life forms the focus of J Nicholas Entrikin s pioneering work Those who point to a decline in the study of place in geography Entrikin explains cite three main causes the apparent homogenization of world culture the belief that studying particular places is somehow parochial and the tendency of the scientific method to generalize Entrikin treats each of these in turn addressing topics that include the Marxist view of a world economy the moral implications of place in such notions as community and provincialism and the empiricist versus neo Kantian traditions in philosophy To geographers arguing the merits of hard scientific data versus subjective experience Entrikin offers a compromise To understand place he suggests requires that we have access to both an objective and a subjective reality From the decentered vantage point of the theoretical scientist place becomes either location or a set of generic relations and loses much of its significance for human action From the centered viewpoint of the subjective self place has meaning only in relation to one's own goals and concerns Place is best viewed from points in between Book Review Index, 1985 Every 3rd issue is a quarterly cumulation

Nation Formation Paul James, 1996-10-14 Deals with concept of nation and nationalism Time and Western Man Wyndham Lewis, 1928 The American West as Playing Space Richard Anthony Gale, 1996 This work suggests that in the second generation of the twentieth century the Old West of freedom frontiers potential was replaced by a New West of imagination and that plays produced in New York during the 1920s and 1920s provide an understanding of the way culture constructs meaningful and useful western landscapes It examines our understanding of the social constructions of space place landscape and motion through time in an effort to explain the ways in which meanings are made and re-made through interactions between geographical perceptions theatrical presentations and cultural representations Abstract Ontario Geography, 1983 Objects of Social Science Eleonora Montuschi, 2003-03-14 The philosophy of social sciences has become one of the battlegrounds of contemporary theory and analysis At the core of the debate is the central question about the objective capacity of a range of disciplines not explicitly regarded as scientific The philosophy of social science employs a rich and complex approach to its object an approach which explores methodological epistemological metaphysical and logical questions How can such a diverse approach attempt objectivity when faced with the complexity of what is studied namely the social world What is the object of social scientific investigation The Objects of Social Science presents a clear and structured analysis of the philosophy of social science across each of its main disciplines Anthropology Sociology History Economics and Geography It both identifies the practical and theoretical procedures involved in the identification of the object and at the same time raises questions about the very objectivity of these procedures in analysing the object The book will prove invaluable to students across the social sciences as a guide to the theories and methodologies which underpin their disciplines Eleonora Montuschi teaches Philosophy of Social Science at the London School of Economics and Political Science where she is Deputy Director Centre for Philosophy of Natural and Social Sciences Environment Kay Anderson, Bruce Braun, 2008 The articles collected together in this volume capture conceptual developments in the field of environmental studies in human geography and illustrate the diversity and remarkable vitality of geographical research on society environment relations Concepts of Urban Design David Gosling, Barry Maitland, 1984 Place, Modernity, and the Consumer's World Robert David Sack, 1992 To create successful consumer places a retail store may be designed to look like the Australian outback A museum may have the appearance of a department store Travel tours may wend through native communities that stage traditional behavior Umberto Eco calls this authentication or instances where the American imagination demands the real thing and to attain it must fabricate the absolute fake In Place Modernity and the Consumer's

World geographer Robert Sack explores this phenomenon along with other problems of modernity mass consumption and advertising to present a dynamic picture of how space and place define the world of the consumer He begins with the geographical premise that space and place provide a means by which we make sense of the world and through which we act He expands this premise to form a relational framework for geographical analysis which is used to show how space is embedded in the realms of meaning nature and social relations He proceeds to demonstrate how places are defined by the ways in which they bring together and transform these three realms Sack then turns to the consumer s world the shopping malls department stores theme parks and resorts that form the everyday landscape of mass consumption He looks at how these places together with the advertising that idealizes the way products are supposed to create places and contexts are constructed and how they intentionally alter aspects of reality in such a way as to create those disorienting qualities associated with postmodernism Finally Sack considers place as both an empirical and a moral concept and establishes a geographical basis for making moral judgments about it Using that framework he finds that places of consumption impair judgment because they disguise the relationships between meaning nature and social relations
