DELINEATIONS of AMERICAN
SCENERY and CHARACTER

BY JOHN JAMES AUDUBON

Introduced by

PROF. FRANCIS D. HERBICK

Author of "Audubon, the Painter," "A History of the Arts and Crafts"

Forty-eight Sketches of American Life, a hundred years after which Audubon interpolated into the text of his Monumental Work, "THE BIRD-BOOK OF AMERICA," issued in 1841-1848, a work now beyond the power of the average man, except by expert editing for the thousand dollars.

They are Now for the First Time brought together into one volume, at a price which brings them within the reach of the general public.

The Sketches mostly relate to Events between 1800 and 1810, and so enlighten on Florida Life in America, particularly of the Ohio and Mississippi Valleys, they have a personal interest.

The Reader will find numerous Tales of Adventure in the Wilderness and on the Frontier, which for local coloring, vivid presentation and personal phases have seldom been equalled.

Audubon was a keen observer of Man and Things, as well as of Birds and Animal Life, and when writing down his experiences on the spot, as was his veritable custom, he was as truthful with his pen as with his pencil and brush.

Audubon was a true prophet. He foretold the alteration which civilization would produce along the delightful banks of his favorite streams, as he beheld the wretched population of Europe coming to stand in the destruction of the forests, and he longed to have his incomparable country adequately portrayed by competent hands, as it was too late and when, as he would say, "it was fresh from the Creator's own hands." He, at least, would do all in his power by pointing the Birds of his adopted land, in their characteristic attitudes and environments, whether nesting or at rest, amid appropriate foliage, flowers and fruits,—all holding up the Mirror to Nature in the accuracy of Truth and in Beauty as well.

These "Delineations" were added to his Ornithological work to give it a more intimate and human touch as well as to beguile the reader.
