

DR. LUDWIG VON MISES is the foremost exponent of the Austrian libertarian school of economic thought. Born and educated in Austria, he was for many years professor of economics at the University of Vienna. Before coming to America in 1940, he also taught at the Graduate Institute of International Studies in Geneva, Switzerland. Now visiting professor at the Graduate School of Business Administration at New York University, Dr. von Mises commands an important following among this country's leaders and students of economic thought.

Universities and other learned institutions in Great Britain, Germany, the Netherlands, France, Italy, Mexico and Peru have frequently had Dr. von Mises as their guest. His writings have been translated into many languages. The most important of these are Human Action (1949), Socialism (New edition, 1951), Theory of Money and Credit (New edition, 1953).

Other of his writings are Planning for Freedom (1952) and Epistemological Problems of Economics (1960).
