Communication And Race A Structural Perspective:

Communication and Race Oscar H. Gandy, 1998 This is an exploration of the ways in which the mass media of communication influence and reflect the character of racial and ethnic identity and the relations between individuals and groups A structural perspective is one which emphasizes the regularity of patterns of behaviour ideas images opinions and relationships and argues that this regularity reflects the influence of structure The structural perspective which is elaborated in this book describes structures as being dynamic and subject to change Such change occurs primarily at historical junctures we associate with critical events Cognitive structures market structures and structures of representation of similarity and difference are shown to be related to each other in ways that change over time

Media & Minorities
Stephanie Greco Larson, 2006 Media Minorities looks at the media's racial tendencies with an eye to identifying the system supportive messages conveyed and offering challenges to them The book covers all major media including television film newspapers radio magazines and the Internet and systematically analyzes their representation of the four largest minority groups in the U S African Americans Native Americans Latinos and Asian Americans Entertainment media are compared and contrasted with news media and special attention is devoted to coverage of social movements for racial justice and politicians of color

Race and the Cultural Industries Anamik Saha, 2018-01-08 Studies of race and media are dominated by textual approaches that explore the politics of representation But there is little understanding of how and why representations of race in the media take the shape that they do How one might ask is race created by cultural industries In this important new book Anamik Saha encourages readers to focus on the production of representations of racial and ethnic minorities in film television music and the arts His interdisciplinary approach combines critical media studies and media industries research with postcolonial studies and critical race perspectives to reveal how political economic forces and legacies of empire shape industrial cultural production and in turn media discourses around race Race and the Cultural Industries is required reading for students and scholars of media and cultural studies as well as anyone interested in why historical representations of the Other persist in the media and how they are to be challenged

Race and Contention in Twenty-First Century U.S. Media
Jason A. Smith, Bhoomi K. Thakore, 2016-04-20 This volume explores and clarifies the complex intersection of race and media in the contemporary United States Due to the changing dynamics of how racial politics are played out in the contemporary US as seen with debates of the post racial society as well as the changing dynamics of the media itself new vs old media debates an interrogation of the role of the media and its various institutions within this area of social inquiry is necessary Contributors contend that race in the United States is dynamic connected to social economic and political structures which are continually altering themselves The book seeks to highlight the contested space that the media provides for changing dimensions of race examining the ways that various representations can both hinder or promote positive racial views considering media in relation to other institutions and moving beyond thinking of media as a passive and singular institution

Intersectionality, Political Economy, and Media Carolyn M. Byerly, 2024-07-30 This textbook considers the critical relationship between gender, race, and class and the political economy of media, providing an accessible introduction for students. Carolyn M. Byerly integrates gender, race, and class analysis in posing an intersectional political economy (IPE) of media theory and demonstrates how that theory applies in examining communication laws, policies, technology, and other aspects of media today. By synthesizing feminist and critical race theories with more traditional class analysis, this book offers a unified approach to examining the media. Individual chapters delve into communication policy, ownership, governance, labor, and technology issues, with a concluding chapter that explores future research. The book situates citizen challenges to the media's control by a small power elite within a dialectic of struggle and highlights specific campaigns that have pursued successful policy and media reform. Several short case studies by other authors illustrate how an IPE investigation can be undertaken. This is a key text for undergraduate and graduate media and communication courses such as Media and Society, Political Economy of Media, Gender, Race, and Media, Research Methods, and more. It will also appeal to social science classes such as Media Sociology, Labor Studies, and Political Economy Research.

Race, Culture and Media Anamik Saha, 2025-05-14 Race, Culture and Media is a critical, impassioned, and accessible exploration of this complex relationship. This new edition moves past conventional discourse on diversity, challenging you to confront the real issues of power and participation. Anamik Saha's approachable writing starts from the ground up, leading you through nuanced topics such as how capitalism and legacies of colonialism shape media content today and the value and limitations of key concepts like stereotype representation and racialisation. You will be empowered to understand the multifaceted theories and experiences of race and its intersections with gender, sexuality, and class. Analyse key topics from how algorithms/AI produce racism in digital media to the politics of superdiversity in popular culture to ongoing anti-migrant and anti-Muslim racism in news media. Engage with brand new case studies which cover the latest developments on how race is made in media, including YouTube and social media. This book will challenge your preconceptions and ignite your critical thinking, making it essential reading for students and researchers across media, communication, and cultural studies.
