Communication, Knowledge, and Memory in Early Modern Spain Fernando J. Two Measures of Knowledge in Communication Sho Miyamoto, 2017 This paper considers extensiveness and conciseness as two measures of knowledge and studies their implications for the production and communication of knowledge First it shows that the receiver's cognitive ability determines the relative importance of the two measures in communication Then the paper examines how information size signals the sender's endogenous knowledge type Information size can also serve as a screening device The receiver requires large information size to incentivize an effort to extend knowledge and small information size to incentivize an effort to condense knowledge Exploratio philosophica John Grote, 1900
