Communities and the Environment Arun Agrawal, Clark C. Gibson, 2001 For years environmentalists thought natural resources could be best protected by national legislation But the poor outcomes of this top down policy have led conservation professionals today to regard local communities as the agents of conservation efforts According to a recent survey more than fifty countries report that they pursue partnerships with local communities in an effort to protect their forests Despite the recent popularity of a community based approach the concept of community rarely receives the attention it should get from those concerned with resource management This balanced volume redresses the situation demonstrating both the promise and the potential dangers of community action Although the contributors advocate community based conservation they examine the record with a critical eye They pay attention to the concrete political contexts in which communities emerge and operate Understanding the nature of community requires understanding the internal politics of local regions and their relationship to external forces and actors Especially critical are issues related to ethnicity gender and the state

Communities in Transition: Protected Nature and Local People in Eastern and Central Europe Dr Saska Petrova, 2014-06-28 The role of local people in contemporary nature conservation practices is often poorly understood or neglected This book therefore examines questions of local participation at the nature society nexus within national parks in the transitional context of Central and Eastern Europe CEE The post 1990 reconfiguration of conservation paradigms in this part of the world has re opened various age old debates about the protection and administration of natural heritage Further complicating the situation has been the introduction of market based principles which has embedded the entire process in broader dynamics of neoliberalization and the capitalist space economy Providing an integrated perspective on why how and for whom nature conservation practices have been implemented in CEE this book sheds further light upon the mechanisms through which such practices both redefine and are affected by the everyday life of people living in national parks Offering a critical global review of the environmental motivations and power interests behind the creation of national parks as well as a typology of the relations between local people and the dynamics of nature protection in them this work challenges the dichotomy between developed and developing countries that pervades much of the academic literature on nature protection Author Saska Petrova highlights the lessons that can be learnt by applying the experiences of local community participation in environmental management in CEE to other locations undergoing major systemic change in their environmental governance practices such as the low carbon transition that is currently unfolding at a global scale

Your Ecosystem, Their Timber Nicholas K. Menzies,2007-05-15 Community based forest management CBFM is a model of forest management in which a community takes part in decision making and implementation and monitoring of activities affecting the natural resources around them CBFM provides a framework for a community members to secure access to the products and services that flow from the landscape in which they live and has become an essential component of any comprehensive approach to forest management In this volume Nicholas K Menzies looks at communities in China Zanzibar Brazil and India where despite differences in landscape climate politics and culture common challenges and themes arise in making a transition from forest management by government agencies to CBFM The stories of these four distinct places highlight the difficulties communities face when trying to manage their forests and negotiate partnerships with others interested in forest management such as the commercial forest sector or conservation and environmental organizations These issues are then considered against a growing body of research concerning what constitutes successful CBFM Drawing on published and unpublished case studies project reports and his own rich experience Menzies analyzes how CBFM fits into the broader picture of the management of natural resources highlighting the conditions that bring about effective practices and the most just and equitable stewardship of resources A critical companion for students researchers and practitioners Our
