When multiple forces act on an object, they can combine to cause the object to move, stop, or change direction. Understanding how forces and acceleration are related provides a foundation for a deeper understanding of motion and its relationship to forces. Newton's second law states that the acceleration of an object is directly proportional to the net force acting on it. The equation for this relationship is $a = F/m$. The mass of an object is a constant, so the acceleration is directly proportional to the net force. This means that if the net force on an object is doubled, the acceleration will also double. Newton's second law also describes the relationship between force and acceleration. For example, pushing a cart with a small weight will accelerate it more quickly than pushing a cart with a large weight. Similarly, pushing a cart with a large weight will accelerate it more slowly than pushing a cart with a small weight. The relationship between force and acceleration is directly proportional. This means that if the net force on an object is doubled, the acceleration will also double.  Read the passage carefully before answering the questions that follow. <ol style="list-style-type: none"> Which of the following is not a contact force? <ol style="list-style-type: none"> Normal force Friction Applied force Gravitational force Which of the following is not a contact force? <ol style="list-style-type: none"> Normal Friction Applied Gravitational Which of the following is not a contact force? <ol style="list-style-type: none"> Normal Friction Applied Gravitational Which of the following is not a contact force? <ol style="list-style-type: none"> Normal Friction Applied Gravitational
