Introduction:

To access Internet, one public IP address is needed, but we can use private IP address in our private network. The idea of NAT is to allow multiple devices to access Internet through a single public address. To achieve this, translation of private IP address to a public IP address is required. Network Address Translation (NAT) is a process in which one or more local IP address is translated into one or more Global IP address and vice versa in order to provide Internet access to the local hosts.

(NAT)working:-

Generally, the border router is configured for NAT i.e. the router which have one interface in local (inside) network and one interface in global (outside) network. When a packet traverse outside the local (inside) network, then NAT converts that local (private) IP address to a global (public) IP address. When a packet enters the local network, the global (public) IP address is converted to local (private) IP address.

NAT inside and outside addresses: Inside refers to the addresses which must be translated. Outside refers to the addresses which are not in control of an organization. These are the network addresses in which the translation of the addresses will be done.
