

THE DARK IS RISING
Problematic Situation Strategy
TEACHER'S GUIDE

PURPOSE OF THE STRATEGY

The strategy is designed to help students think about the perspectives and problems within the text. With a problematic situation for The Dark is Rising, I wanted the students to consider their own conceptions about the hero's journey. They must draw on previous knowledge as well as personal opinions to decide what types of things are most valuable to their quest. In working with a group to reach a consensus, they must use problem solving and decision making skills.

DIRECTIONS

This strategy could be used at any point during the reading of the novel, but maybe most useful at the beginning to help create interest in the quest story. Present the situation to students. Have them read situation individually and rank items on their own. Then, gather into groups of three or four to discuss ratings and rank items together as a group.

EXAMPLE

An evil wizard is threatening to destroy the world. You are part of a small team that has been chosen to stop the wizard before he can carry out his plans. This is a powerful and cunning wizard, but he can be defeated. You must rate the listed items to determine their importance in your quest.

On your own, decide which items are most important to you. Rate them from 1 to 15 (One being most important). Then, in a group of three or four persons, come to an agreement on what your band of adventurers will bring.

GROUP DECISION INSTRUCTIONS

Your group should attempt to reach a reasonable consensus by talking about possible alternatives. If two or more group members disagree, search for a compromise that can be accepted by all parties. Avoid arguing your own points, but present you opinions logically and honestly. Consider the opinions of others carefully and respectfully. Working through differences of opinion will help you consider the possible consequences of your decisions. Involve all members of the group in the decision making process.

Choose wisely. The fate of the world rests in your hands!
